Mouse For Mac Usb

USB C mice like you have said, are basically only mini or wireless I know you've said you'd rather not use a dongle at all, but something like or could work very well with mice you already have, and since they are both pretty small, you can leave them attached to your mouse's wire at all times unless you don't need it. Mac usb mouse Best Buy customers often prefer the following products when searching for Mac USB Mouse. I hoped I could choose from either wireless or wired, by design or brand I understood there wouldn't be a large selection, but surely a few companies are producing these. The overwhelming majority of people in need of such mice have computers that still have USB-a connectors. Mice, keyboards, and controllers alike They are very portable and much more convenient than a dock. We may start to see USB-a to USB-c adapters included with some mice like again. I predict it's going to be some time (at least 6-8 months) before we see the majority of mice using USB-c.

I use one with my Samsung Galaxy S8, and it allows me to use any web-browser flawlessly with my phone. I know. I know "Get a dock or dongle!" OP wrote: I've scoured the internet for a USB-C mouse At this point it's like looking for Bigfoot. Fearless prediction: it's going to be a while before we see many 3rd party mice with USB-c connectors (instead of USB-a connectors). Who's going to bring to market a product that will require an adapter for most computers that it will plugged into? I'm not saying there won't be any USB-c mice (see the link in reply #9 above). At this point it's like looking for Bigfoot I hoped I could choose from either wireless or wired, by design or brand.
